Kaua'i police remind drivers to use caution

LĪHU'E — Kaua'i police are reminding the public to please drive with caution, particularly during early morning hours, as vehicles on the road and pedestrian traffic continue to increase.

"Since more businesses are re-opening and people are going back to work, Kaua'i will experience a steady increase in traffic," said Patrol Services Bureau Captain Rod Green.

"Fortunately, we haven't had any issues, but we want to remind everyone to drive with added caution and vigilance, and to be especially mindful of pedestrians."

The Kaua'i Police Department would also like to remind pedestrians who like to walk or jog during early morning or evening hours to wear bright, reflective clothing or gear so that they can easily be spotted by drivers.

"Again, we want to thank everyone for their cooperation and support as we navigate through these difficult times," said Green. "We appreciate all that you're doing, including taking these added precautions to ensure the continued safety of our community."
